Managing International Risks for Swiss Companies

Practical Insights from SNSF-Funded Research on Transnational Corruption

The event aims to share the main findings of an SNSF-funded survey conducted among 500 Swiss firms operating abroad. Bringing together representatives from Swiss businesses, business associations, public institutions, and academia, the event fosters discussion on geopolitical risks, particularly those related to transnational corruption, the strategies adopted to mitigate these risks, and the role of institutions and business networks in supporting internationally active firms. The program includes keynote discussions, presentation of the survey findings, and interactive sessions designed to encourage exchange among participants and identify practical recommendations for businesses.
